SUBJECT: Your Work on the Standard Instructions

Behind every job that is well done is someone who has worked with a lot of imagination, initiative, energy, and devotion. The new Standard Instructions is no exception.

I compliment you on your major contribution and express my appreciation for all that you have done to make this an outstanding set of instructions. Further, I feel that the sizeable effort you have made to put quality into these instructions will immeasurably benefit the NIS program for years to come. All of us are indeed in your debt. I hope that your reward comes not only from the satisfaction you can feel for a job well done, but also from knowing that you had a major role in improving the quality of contributions from the many participants in the NIS program.

Congratulations and many thanks for doing such an outstanding job.
